OBJECTIVES:

- To improve communication skills: Participating in a drama or skit helps students practice clear and concise communication, both verbally and nonverbally.
- To overcoming stage fright: The skit format provides a less formal platform for students to practice speaking in front of an audience. It also helps to manage anxieties and build confidence.

SUMMARY:

The activity was initiated and conducted by the students and teachers of the public speaking club. The class was first divided into several teams consisting of 5 members in each team and the drama was conducted.

The judgment was based on the topic, narration, performance and the title given the play. The students wear eager to see the play of their competitors. Students had selected the topic like go green (save trees), women harassment and drug effected students in the college etc., there were many interesting topic taken by the students and narrated the plan of their own, by the end of each skit the judge spoke about each team where they would have improvised.

The winner was Kiran and team (save trees go green) was the topic enacted wonderfully with a short period of time. The message of go green was wonderfully portrayed and the runner up was Sahana and team (women harassment) and how women should break the silence.

Overall, incorporating drama or skits into the public speaking club provides a well-rounded learning experience for first-year MBA students, enhancing their communication skills, teamwork abilities, and confidence.

This also encouraged students to explore social issues creatively through drama and public speaking. It offered a platform to raise awareness and deliver important messages.
